HANDLING PORCELAIN

One of the features of porcelain is that it often comes in a larger format, which can make it both heavy and cumbersome, so care should be taken when handling the pieces.

CUTTING PORCELAIN

Porcelain Paving is best cut using a power saw, fitted with a good quality diamond blade which is water fed.

ZOE 150 BRIDGE SAW MACHINE

“The Raimondi Zoe 150 Advanced Tile Saw Machine is suitable for cutting all types of porcelain and natural stone. It has an adjustable cutting depth and a tilting motor assembly for bevel cuts between 0 and 45° and a maximum length of cut of 155cm. The framework is cast and extruded aluminium and the large format 38l water tank is removable for easy cleaning. A heavy duty dual nozzle water pump provides superior blade cooling. Legs are telescopic with an anti-collapse device and wheels for easy transport. Blade guards pivot to remain parallel with the tile for maximum cutting depth and float to provide extra safety in operation. A pressure device holds the tile steady and the Square is re-adjustable for long-lasting precision.
